

Whether you are a student, or a faculty member of the University of South Carolina, it is extremely hard to find any parking when and where you need it. If you do pay the 500 dollar fine it takes to gain access to the parking garage, you can't even be sure that a spot is open within the garage. There needs to be an easier way for students and faculty to access this information quickly and efficiently.